

Subject-oriented Business Process Modelling using BPMN

S-BPM in BPMN?

„If you follow just a few rules, you will be perfectly able to model S-BPM processes using your favourite BPMN editor and import them in InFlow.“

Dr. Albert Fleischmann, inventor of S-BPM, Shareholder and Senior Consultant at StrICT Solutions

Business Process Modelling Notation v. 1.2

Gateways

Data-based Exclusive Gateway

Parallel Gateway

Inclusive Gateway

Event-based Exclusive Gateway

Complex Gateway

Events

	Start	Intermediate	End
	Catching	Throwing
Plain
Message
Timer
Error
Cancel
Compensation
Conditional
Signal
Multiple Link
Terminate

Activities

Task

Multiple Instances

Collapsed Subprocess

Loop

Ad-hoc Subprocesses

Sequence Flow

Conditional Flow

Default Flow

Message Flow

Data

Data Object

Data Object

Undirected Association

Directed Association

Bidirected Association

Transaction

Transaction

Documentation

Group

Text Annotation

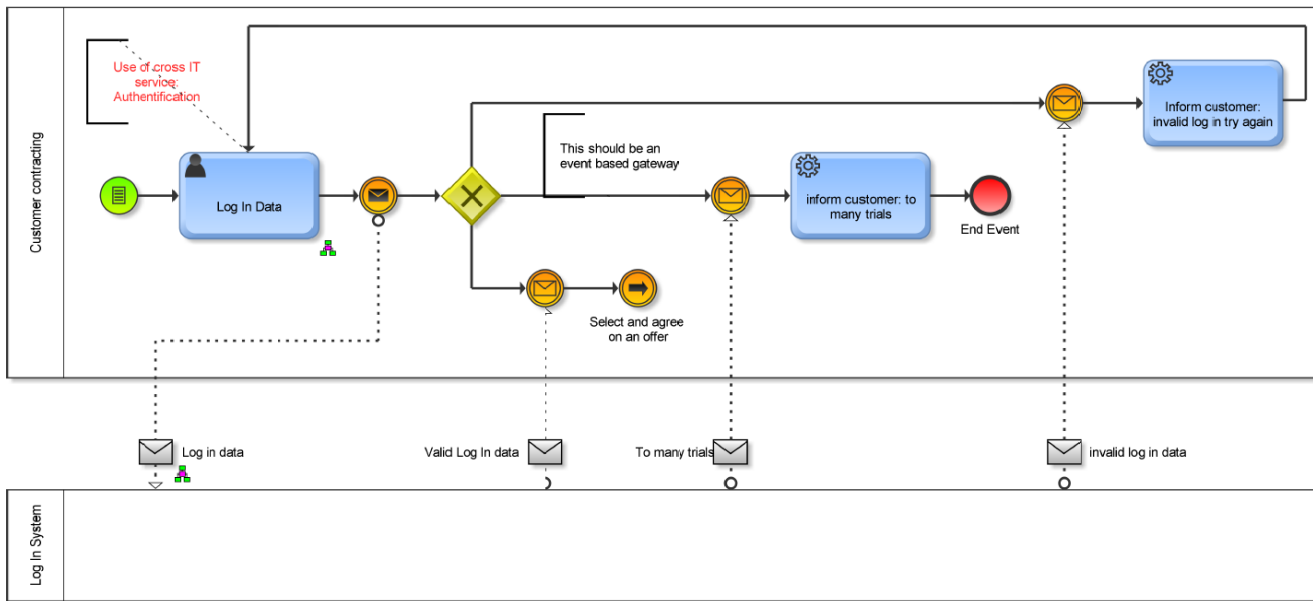

BPMN Symbols for Subject-Oriented Business Process Modelling /1

Symbol	Graphic	Description
Pool		Unit with process execution sequence.
Message		Asynchronous message exchange between pools
Start event		Start event: Process instance is created
Multiple start event		Multiple start event
Activity (Human, Service)		Task executed by human or machine
Data store		Data store

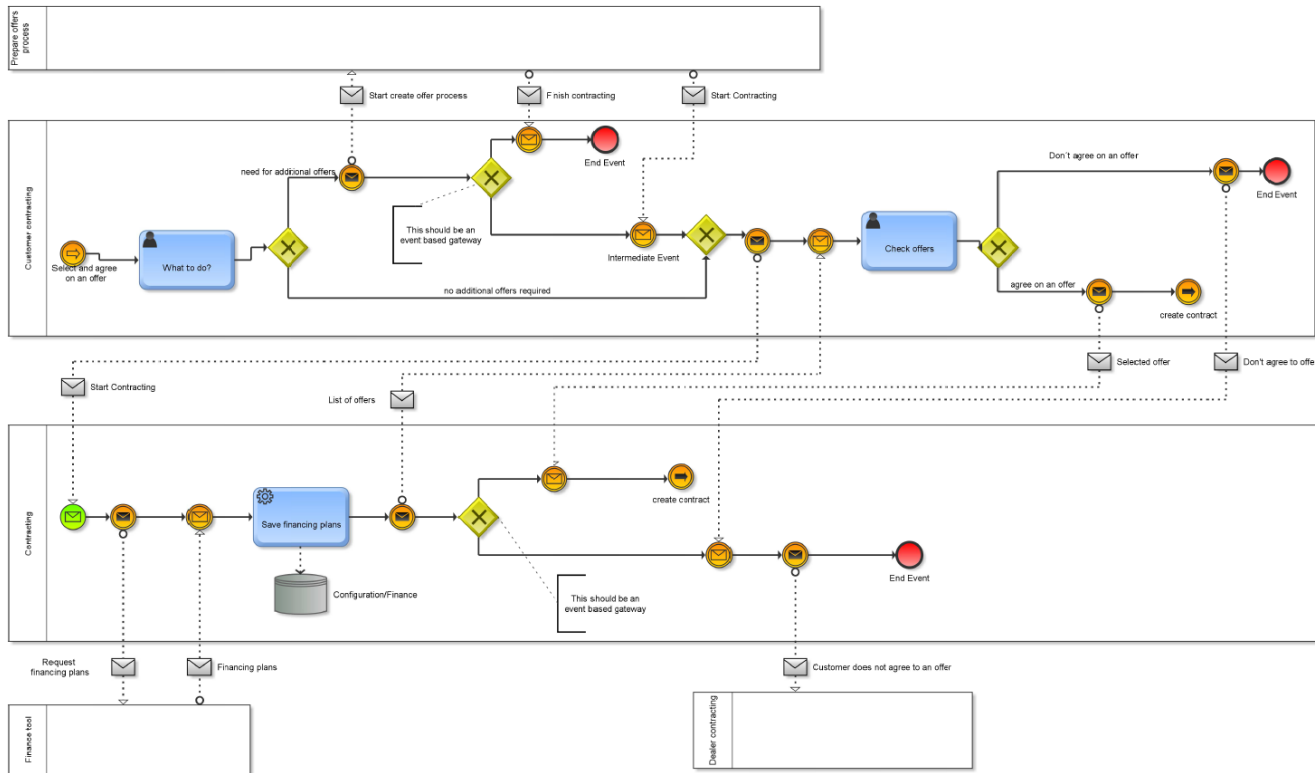

BPMN Symbols for Subject-Oriented Business Process Modelling /2

Symbol	Graphic	Description
EXOR		Computed alternatives
Send event		Send message to a receive event in an other pool
Receive event		Receive a message from a send event in another pool
Event based gateway		Waiting for several messages alternately
End event		Process instance finished
Link events		Connecting sequences on different pages

Example (1)

Example (2)

www.strict-solutions.com